A thirty-year-old man is said to have stabbed his girlfriend to death on Valentine's Day for refusing him sex.

The incident is said to have happened at Suminakese, a town in the Eastern Region, according to a report by Classfmonline.

Ebenezer Yaw Darko, also known as 'Power', according to the report, went into a fit of rage after his girlfriend, Yaa Nimakoa, 26, refused him sex after reportedly spending money on her.

Ms Nimakoa, who did not die immediately after the stabbing, according to the report, told people who rushed to assist her that Darko, whom she had been dating for five years, attempted raping her when they returned home at about 10pm after an outing.

When she refused, Darko grabbed a knife and stabbed her, the report stated.

Nimakoa died as she was being rushed to the hospital, the report added, noting that her parents had warned her against dating Darko, who, according to them, was “mentally unstable.”
